Illuminating the Moments that Matter

Every physician is the sum of moments that came before. The early mornings in medical school when foundations of knowledge are carefully laid, and the journey to medical practice truly begins.

The late nights of residency when theory meets reality and every patient encounter shapes the future physician. The hours of exams when preparation ensures readiness and years of study are validated.

It all leads to the time spent at a bedside, when diagnosis becomes healing, and knowledge saves lives.

This is why NBME exists: to strengthen crucial moments of this vital journey with tools and assessments that support learners and educators alike. To uncover meaningful data and insights that guide progress and foster growth, and to help ensure the path to providing patient care is built on mastery so that every patient everywhere can receive the care they deserve.

NBME, illuminating the moments that matter.

On-screen: [nbme.org.]