

Why NBME?

On-screen: [What makes NBME a great place to work?

Leila Reed, Senior Director, Portfolio Management, NBME.]

Leila: There's such a great emphasis on work life balance. And it's not just your typical work life balance that, you know, whether you're single, you're married or you're a single parent, the organization makes it possible for you to be successful both at home and at work.

Rava: Whenever there has been a time where I've had to leave work early for a family emergency or illness or kid-related event or anything like that of that nature, I've had bosses that were entirely supportive. It's not, "Oh, we'll try to work around that." It was, "Okay, go, go do what you got to do and we'll make it work."

And I think that's one of the best parts of working here at NBME, that people are grounded in that way and try to make sense of balance and perspective.

Pam: The fact that we have hybrid work and flexibility and that we've still found ways to connect with each other and our community while having the flexibility of working from home and having time to both think and interact has been really meaningful for me personally.

On-screen: [Joshua Demaree, Senior Editor, NBME.]

Joshua: The benefits, if I'm being perfectly honest, you know, the benefits here are kind of better than I've seen in basically anywhere else, the best benefits I've certainly ever had.

On-screen: [Benefits: Competitive Paid Time Off, Workplace Flexibility/Remote Work, Professional Development, Curated Wellness Program, Competitive Benefits Package, Excellent Paid Leave Benefits, Career Growth Opportunities, Caring Culture.

Francis O'Donnell, Senior Psychometrician, NBME.]

Francis: We have a work culture that promotes collaboration and continuous improvement. My first experience at NBME was when I was an intern in 2015. I got to do meaningful work with great people and I wanted to come back since then. Now, as a full-time employee, I get to be part of several cross-unit teams. I continue collaborating and doing meaningful work.
